

- What are your rates?
- What types of websites do you develop?
- I already have a domain name and/or hosting. Is that a problem?
- Do you have any credentials?

What are your rates?

Please see Services for pricing. Some projects require custom quotes, so please contact me, tell me your concept and needs, and I'll send you a quote we can walk through.

What types of websites do you develop?

I mainly develop sites for small businesses and freelancers. I normally use TextWrangler, Dreamweaver, Rapidweaver, and yes, even iWeb to code the base foundations of a website. Then I use Adobe Flash CS5, Javascript, and third-party code snippets to enhance the functionality and visual creativity. For backend functionality and administrative consoles, I've used a multitude of solutions developed myself and from third-parties.

I already have a domain name and/or hosting. Is that a problem?

It doesn't matter where you get a domain name, but hosting plans can sometimes be problematic. Some hosting plans are incompatible with certain types of website code. I've run into problems with about 10% of my clients who already have hosting plans, so regardless, it's usually not an issue. Also, it's usually an easy switch to cancel existing plans and go with the 'other guy.' Regardless, I recommend contacting me before you make any purchases so you can feel confident in your domain and hosting plans.

Do you have any credentials?

Yes! This website provides links to over 50 different companies and individuals for whom I've completed work. Please see the

FAQ

Clients page, Portfolio page, and Blog pages to see the work I've done and for contact information. Furthermore, upon request, I can provide a resume with past employment and school information.
